We are looking for Finance Managers who want to live and work in Abroad.

A petroleum engineer works with a team of specialists to locate natural reservoirs of petroleum deposits and to develop the most cost-effective, efficient methods of extracting petroleum. The petroleum engineer uses principles from chemistry, mathematics, engineering, and geology to maximize the efficiency and environmental safety of petroleum extraction.

Petroleum Engineer Responsibilities:

Analyzing, interpreting, and monitoring the geological formation data to ascertain the extraction risks and the best methods of extraction.

Using surveys, testing, and analysis to evaluate new reservoirs to determine profits and to create low-cost drilling and extraction plans.

Generating computer-simulated models for drilling formation and equipment, ensuring and designing the best tools and equipment for extraction, and managing machinery and production costs.

Determining the most efficient way to drill through internal divisions for a free-flowing single well.

Determining the most efficient way to fracture shale beds to free the gas or oil.

Overseeing ongoing production operations, ensuring the efficient extraction and drilling, and ensuring extraction and transportation respect safety and environmental regulations.

Maintaining on-site drilling and pumping equipment.

Developing and refining methods of extracting more petroleum from existing wells.

Overseeing the removal of the company's equipment, the sealing of the reservoir, and the disposal of waste materials once the reservoir has been exhausted.

Â

Petroleum Engineer Requirements:

A bachelor's degree in petroleum, civil, mechanical, chemical, or related Engineering field.

An in-depth, creative knowledge of extraction techniques and principles.

Good IT, research, and survey skills.

Strong technical, analytical, numerical, and problem-solving skills.

Good communication, interpersonal, and teamworking skills.

The willingness and ability to be held accountable for multi-million dollar operations.

The willingness and ability to work in remote locations, with harsh climates and often unfriendly locals.

The ability to handle a physically demanding and stressful work environment.
