Description:

A qualified and licensed person on board the ship who is not a member of the ship's crew and who brings local knowledge and maritime expertise in handling vessels in confined waterways in ports to protect the port from the hazards of the ship and to protect the vessel from the hazards of the port.

Job Responsibilities

Responsible for the direction and control of the ship's navigation in pilotage waters, narrow waterways in port approaches, and for the final docking of the ship to harbour facilities. Engage pilotage techniques relying on nearby visual reference points and local knowledge of tides, swells, currents, depths and shoals that might not be readily identifiable on nautical charts to manoeuvre the vessel through a safe navigable route and clear from marine hazards.

Job Requirements

10 years of experience at sea, including at least 2 years in command of deep draft ships or harbour tugs in the relevant port.

Holder of a maritime certificate of competency that is required by the port authority of the relevant port and issued by the pilotage authority
