Job Description

The EPC-Project Manager is accountable for the full performance of every phase of a project or a group of projects in the refining, midstream, chemical, and petrochemical industries, including the strategic and tactical planning, directing, supervising, and controlling of all technical, fiscal, and administrative contractual functions, for both home office and site.

This person will be responsible for planning, organizing, and directing multi-office engineering disciplines, procurement, project controls, construction management, and subcontractors to deliver major EPC/CM projects from front-end engineering, through detailed design, procurement, construction, handover, and close-out.

Responsibilities:

Establish project teams, coordinate activities of multiple disciplines, and ensure efficient project execution with accountability.

Develop project execution plans for safety, project staffing, budgeting, scheduling, and establishing critical project objectives, applying your leadership skills to manage client and internal changes.

Manage the production of TIC estimates (including trending), engineering deliverables, procurement of engineered equipment and bulk materials, administration of construction subcontracts, and the overall safety, cost, schedule, & quality of assigned projects.

Encourage and implement successful workshare execution for all engineering and project services scopes.

Demonstrate creativity, foresight, and mature judgment in anticipating risks and mitigating those risks .

Provide performance feedback to department managers for project team members as appropriate.

Mentor Project Engineers and ConstructionManagers to assist with their career development.

Participate in organizational improvement initiatives as necessary.

Ensure that the project review process and other quality control guidelines are followed.

Develop and maintain positive relationships with prospective and existing client personnel particularly at executive levels but also at all levels of management.

Support continuous improvement of project management execution systems, work processes, and procedures.

Identify opportunities, engage in opportunity pursuits, and manage team efforts for proposals, presentations, contract negotiation, and related activities.

Other duties as assigned.
