Quantitative Developer, Cubist Systematic Strategies (Dubai or London) Please send CVs to cubist-talent@cubistsystematic.com

About Cubist: Cubist Systematic Strategies is one of the world's premier investment firms.

The firm deploys systematic, computer-driven trading strategies across multiple liquid asset classes, including equities, futures and foreign exchange. The core of our effort is rigorous research into a wide range of market anomalies, fueled by our unparalleled access to a wide range of publicly available data sources.

Role: Quantitative Developer for a Cubist portfolio manager based in Dubai.

Responsibilities:

Building components for both live trading and simulation

Refining, and increasing automation and robustness of the research infrastructure including alpha estimation, risk modeling, and backtesting components

Maintaining and updating the platform, ensuring its stability, robustness, and security

Developing robust data checking and storage procedures

Troubleshooting and resolving any systems related issues and handle the release of code fixes and enhancements

Requirements:

Masters or PhD in computer science or other quantitative discipline

5+ years of experience designing and developing research and live trading infrastructure at a financial institution, including experience in futures and FX

Experience handling connections to execution/order management systems

Strong programming skills in Python

Experience with SQL, database design, and large datasets

Willing to take ownership of his/her work, working both independently and within a small team

Commitment to the highest ethical standards
