Senior Backend Engineer | Grafana Labs Abu Dhabi

Grafana Labs is the company behind Grafana, Loki, Mimir and Tempo, the leading open source software for visualizing operational data. Grafana Labs helps users get the most out of Grafana, enabling them to take control of their unified monitoring and avoid vendor lock in and the spiraling costs of closed solutions.

The Grafana Alerting squad operates at the core of the Grafana open-source project (link), and our mission is to provide the most in-depth way to let users manage their alerts. The backend-focused team works closely with customers and the Grafana Cloud teams to make Alerting work on-prem and at infinite scale in Cloud.

Solid experience with at least one programming language. We use Go, but if you have familiarity with Python, C, C++, Rust or similar then that translates well

Some experience with delivering projects from gathering requirements, brainstorming ideas all the way to shipping a product to the customer's hands in a self-driven way

Some experience with developing software that runs in the Cloud or some experience with systems engineering

Experience writing clean, robust, and performant software that is easily maintained by others

Nice To Haves

Experience working with Kubernetes

Been a user of Grafana and Prometheus in operational roles (including on-call for your team at a previous employer or just using these tools on hobby/homelab projects)

Exposure to microservices architecture and distributed systems, or a desire to learn

Familiarity with being on-call and performing operations/SRE tasks or with the concept of infrastructure as code
